How I can use social responsibility to help create opportunities through procurement is by: Stakeholders like investors, business partners, vendors, employees, government, communities and customers all play vital roles in actively demanding either rewards or disciplines of all sectors on how successful they are at balancing their areas and at what costs. Priority in addressing the role procurement plays in its societal goals and the implications of these goals either positively or negatively. After African-American migration from the rural to the urban South and from the urban South to the urban North created institutions for organizing opposition to racial discrimination.
